INITIATION: age 10 or 11 (guitar), 2018 (drums)

AFFILIATIONS: A Night of Arrogance, Maax Power and the Children of God

CAUSE FOR CELEBRATION: graduated high school last week

MOTIVE: his social circles are built around music; it's most of his life

INITIAL ENCOUNTER: unknown

IMPETUS: GIO's previous band broke up, so they posted an Instagram story asking if anyone wanted to play in a new band. ROWAN and three other people responded. After one practice, GIO and ROWAN knew it was just going to be the two of them.

ATTRITION: GIO kicked the first person out within a week because they were worse at guitar than GIO thought they were ("extremely"). The bass player quit within the next two weeks, and the vocalist was out a week after that.

REBRANDING: They needed a new name now that they were a two-piece; ROWAN's sister CLEMENTINE suggested something along the lines of "small head big body." GIO posted a picture of the band on Instagram with "small head big torso vicious grip" under it, and it became the band name.

REGIMEN: Typically ROWAN will come to practice with a really hard drum part, then he and GIO will write the whole song from it in one 20-45 minute session. They barely talk while writing and sometimes stop to think silently for a few minutes before arriving at the same idea and continuing the song. SEE VOL. 2

BIG TORSO DEBUT: Recorded at Over Yonder with CLEMENTINE; guitar and drums were tracked together first, then bass, then all the vocals in one take. The three electronic tracks were recorded during practices. CLEMENTINE did all the mixing.

TITLER: Primarily ROWAN, inspired by "pictures that go hard" and things that contrast each other. He also writes down phrases he likes and combines them together. "FIT PICS IN THE VIPER PIT" was inspired by a video of pit bikers being interviewed in the Viper Pit at Pastranaland. @JHUA3WxRc

DOGMA: ego, anti-fascist politics

RECENT WORKS: FLIPPING ONE SIDED COINS AND ROLLING SPHERICAL DICE @giant.neversmall

LIKELY NEXT MOVES: split EP with Giant; writing the last few songs for a new album
